

Hyundai Buying Guide

You'll be hard-pressed to find a better new-car value

by Sarah Fairfield

Introduction

If you don't feel the need to flaunt a Bavarian-badged ride and you're looking for the best value in automotive transportation, Hyundai should be one of your go-to brands. With the most generous warranties in the business (5-year/60,000-mile bumper-to-bumper and 10-year/100,000-mile powertrain), high-caliber interiors, strong reliability ratings and all-around everyday capability, Hyundai has launched itself into serious competition with larger, better-established rivals relatively quickly. The Hyundai lineup runs the gamut from the pleasant Accent subcompact and luxurious Genesis sedan to the sleek new 2010 Tucson and upscale Veracruz SUVs. And to spice things up a bit, Hyundai even throws in an impressive and comely new rear-wheel-drive sports car, the Genesis Coupe. Read on to get the skinny on each of this rising Korean brand's models. Story then goes on to describe each Hyundai model:
